Step 3: Getting Started
Getting Started

Set the emotional tone

Know your objective going in
What do you hope to accomplish with this conversation? Develop the desired objectives and what are the non-negotiable points; plan for any obstacles to the desired outcome.

Don’t assume you know everything about the situation - Listen
We do not know all sides of the story; approach this conversation with an open mind and try to understand where the other person is coming from.

Approach the conversation from the perspective of collaboration
Frame the conversation in terms of both of working together to solve a common problem. Work to define the issues that are common.

Ensure neutrality
Select a facilitator that can play a neutral role; ask clarifying questions to help a group delve more deeply, but does not weigh in with opinions on what is discussed.

Getting Started

Diversity
A healthy cross-section of voices at the table is vital.

Safety
Create a safe space by establishing clear rules and ensure every participant is heard.

Patience
Resist the tendency to rush or to control things. Plan enough time to allow for ‘slowness’ where good thinking and reflection can take place.

Listening
Emphasize that everyone has something to contribute, so we must all be able to both hear and be heard.

Next Steps
Listening creates expectations for action. A measurable set of next steps must become clarified and implemented as follow-up to the conversation.

Step 4: Connecting Your Advocacy to Action

Goal/Agenda Setting – Establishing a Mission & Vision Statement
Goal-Setting

Setting and defining clear goals for your organization are the very foundation of a successful organization. Goals define what the organization is trying to accomplish.

Provides Focus, Increases Motivation, Improves Group Cohesion, Clarifies the Groups Identity, Promotes Buy-in, Provides Mechanism for Accountability, Creates Openness and Transparency, and Ensures Progress is Measurable.

Goals should be:

S – Specific (or Significant).

M – Measurable (or Meaningful).

A – Attainable (or Action-Oriented).

R – Relevant (or Rewarding).

T – Time-bound (or Trackable).
Goal-Setting

How to Get Started:

① Know the issues and their relevance
② Know the strengths and weakness of the group
③ Know where you want to be within a specified amount of time
④ Determine who is contributing and their role
⑤ Establish how the goals will be communicated – what is the messaging?
⑥ Build in time to reflect and evaluate if the goals
⑦ Develop an Action Plan[s]: action plans describe the specific steps to be taken in order to achieve the goal.
Organizational Mission

“A mission is an organization's purpose or reason for being. The mission answers the question[s]”

① Who are we?
② What do we do?

“The mission is ongoing and does not change unless the core [function of the organization] changes…”

“A mission statement may be rather broad…[but]…provide[s] adequate definition of the organization. The mission does not change or get replaced as problems are solved… it is not as time bounded…”

Principles of Organizational Goal Setting
Organizational Vision Statement

“A vision is an ideal image of a possible and desirable future state of the organization as it carries out its mission.”

“Values are a part of a vision statement...and represents an ideal rather than a specific achievement.”

2) Inside this conversation we want people to engage with each other in these ways...
3) At the end of this conversation, we want these things to be clear...
4) Following this conversation, we want these things to happen...

Pathways for Effective Communication
Effective Communication 101: Fostering an Effective Relationship With Your Child’s School

It’s A Partnership
As a starting point, always consider your relationship with your child’s school, a partnership. This will allow you to foster a relationship with your child’s teacher that will continue to be nurtured throughout the school year.

Create a Plan of Action for Communication
Make sure to share your expectations for communication with your child’s teacher. Remember have patience – teachers and school administrators can have a variety of things on their agenda daily, but should always respond to your requests for communication.

Always Follow Up
Calling multiple times in a day is not the best strategy for communication but following up the next day, or even in two days, after making a request to communicate with your child’s teacher, or school administrator, would be valuable. Make sure to ask when you can expect for your message to be returned.
Effective Communication 101: When Conflict Arises

Clearly Identify the Problem or Concern
Organizing yourself and being prepared will ensure that you are able to clearly share your concerns.

Understand the Rules
Take time to understand what the school rules and/or expectations are for your child. Also, be clear on the expectations that school has for parents. If those expectations do not sound appropriate do not be afraid to ask questions and offer suggestions.

Listen
Remember to ACTIVELY listen to what other perspectives might be offered.

Ask Questions
Do not be afraid to ask questions – never leave confused, always ask for clarity.

Find Common Ground
There is always room for compromise. Remember the good in reaching a solution that is in the best interest of your child.

Create A Plan of Action
If there is an issue that needs to be more formally addressed, talk with the teacher, or other school personnel about developing a plan to specifically address the issue. Clearly outline each person’s responsibilities and ways to follow up.

Gather Information, Organize Yourself, Be Prepared
Talk with your child to get their perspective. Take some time to organize your thoughts prior to communicating with your child’s teacher or school – preparing the questions you have for the teacher or school in advance might be a useful exercise. Taking a moment to organize yourself will ensure that you do not forget to raise important points or questions.

Suggestions Are Welcome
In addition to questions, do not be afraid to offer suggestions or options that you feel are in the best interest of your child.

Have Patience
Solutions might not be immediate but having clarity of the timeline for solutions and getting answers to your questions is appropriate.

Remove Emotions, Share Facts
Talking to your child’s school about an issue can elicit a host of emotions. Take a moment to breathe before talking to the school – explain your concerns clearly and as calmly as possible. This will ensure that you have collected your thoughts.

Effective Communication 101: General Tips to Know

Take Time To Inform:
Make sure that you clearly, and promptly, inform your child’s teacher, and other appropriate school personnel, of any issues your child is dealing with or any concerns that you might have – especially if the issue at hand might impact your child’s performance or behavior.

Find Ways To Get Involved:
Parent involvement is not only limited to parent organizations, ask about other opportunities to get engaged at your child’s school. Actively engaging at your child’s school also provides avenues for communication with not only your child’s teacher but also other relevant school personnel. Involvement can also foster positive relationships with other parents and uncover essential information that would be valuable for your child’s success.

Need help getting started? Consider trying a few of these sentence starters to engage your child’s teacher or school:
- “I’m concerned about my child’s…”
- “Help me understand…”
- “Have you considered…”
- “I’ve noticed…”
- “Her IEP provides her with ____. How does that look in the classroom?”
- “It seems as if he has a harder time doing ____ when ______.”

Ask For Help:
There are times when you need help. It might be helpful that you need from your child’s teacher or school, but also on occasion you might need assistance that the school may not have the resources or capacity to provide. Nurturing relationships with your child’s teacher, other parents, or even other individuals might lead you to the organization, agency, or resource that can give you the exact assistance that you, or your child, need.
